

FOUR CANDIDATES
FOR DEMOCRATIC
LEADERSHIP OUTNew York Times Names
Smith, Ritchie, Dona-hey, McAdoo

New York, Jan. 18—(AP)—Campaigns for two, and possibly four, candidates for the 1928 democratic presidential nomination are definitely under way, the New York Times says today.

The four aspirants named are Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, A. V. Donahy of Ohio, Alfred E. Smith of New York and former Secretary of the Treasury W. G. McAdoo.

The chances of C. L. Shaver, national democratic chairman, who is visiting here, for retention of his post are bright, the Times also says. Neutral members of the committee who fear another deadlock between Smith and McAdoo factions are said to favor him, because of his own neutral attitude.

Ritchie a Menace.
Gov. Ritchie, the Times says, is described by some democrats as a particular menace to the chances of New York's favorite son. As an indication of his strength, his friends are quoted as pointing to reports that Bernard M. Baruch, a McAdoo supporter in 1924, favors the Maryland governor.

Gov. Donahy, the Times says, is considered handicapped by the possible necessity for running this fall for a third term as a means of keeping to the fore during the pre-convention campaign. New York democrats are quoted as claiming his campaign is making little headway outside his own state.

G. O. P. To Aid Smith.
Governor Smith's recent announcement that he will retire to private life at the end of his term has caused confusion in both democratic and republican ranks. The Times states that Albany advisers indicate republican legislators are planning to cooperate with him rather than give occasion to keep him in state politics by defeating any of his program. Democrats are wondering whether his announcement applies to national as well as state politics, but the general belief is that it gives him a free hand for the national campaign.

McAdoo supporters, the Times adds, are worried lest their campaign assumes an anti-Smith rather than a pro-McAdoo complexion.

Some influential democrats, the Times continues, are reported to be opposed to the nomination of either Governor Smith or McAdoo, whose names they fear would again result in a serious deadlock as in 1924. They are said to favor the nomination of Senator Thomas Walsh of Montana who declined to become a candidate at the last convention.

Dixon Societies Y. P.
S. C. E. to Hear Field
Secretary Next Month

Dixon Christian Endeavorers are to have the benefit of a visit soon from the Illinois Field Secretary of the Christian Endeavor Union, F. D. G. Walker of Chicago, who will conduct a rally here, Tuesday evening, Feb. 2. At a conference yesterday afternoon at the Grace Evangelical church, it was decided to hold this rally in the Grace church.

Mr. Walker's coming is intended to encourage and strengthen the local societies, and incidentally offer suggestions for a successful session here, next May, of the Northwest District Christian Endeavor Convention.

The City C. E. Union Executive Committee, as now constituted, is as follows:

President, Allen Baird of Presbyterian Society; First Vice President, Wm. Rhodes of Christian; Second Vice President, to be elected from United Evangelical Society; Secretary, Miss Bertha Hanes of Congregational; Treasurer, Miss Mildred Schrock of Grace Evangelical.

Dixon Lady Injured in Accident in Sterling

Sterling Gazette—Miss Helen Quall of Dixon is confined in the Sterling public hospital as the result of injuries received Thursday evening when a motorcycle on which she and a companion were riding, collided with an automobile west of this city on the Lincoln highway. The extent of her injuries had not been fully determined. She has a fractured left elbow bone and a badly bruised shoulder, and there is a head injury. Her condition Friday morning was good considering the extent of her injuries.

Last Session Business
School on this Evening

The Business and Salesmanship school will be held this evening at 7:45 at the City Hall. This will perhaps be the last session of the school as Prof. Gardner is to leave the University of Wisconsin on account of his health. A large attendance is desired, this evening.

OREGON STATE
BANK IN PLANS
FOR NEW SITEDirectors See Need of New Quarters for the Bank

Oregon—Prospects of a new bank and office building loomed bright this week after the meeting of stockholders of the Oregon State Savings bank. The institution has been considering building a new home for the past year but plans were deferred because of the excessive cost of material. The bank has shown an increase of more than 20 percent in business during 1925 and more room and added equipment is essential, officers informed stockholders at the annual session.

Rename Syster President.
Reports read at the annual session indicated that the Oregon State had experienced a most successful year. Total resources in the December 31 statement represented more than $647,000, a $100,000 increase in a 12-month period.

Atty. J. C. Syster was renamed president; Atty. Solon W. Crowell, vice president; Charles M. Gale, cashier; Albert S. Gale, Frank W. Gantz and Miss Rhoda Carr, assistant cashiers. Directors include J. C. Syster, S. W. Crowell, C. M. Gale, E. E. Murdock and Michael Farrell.

OFFICE CHICAGO
HOTEL HELD UP
EARLY THIS A. M.Five Robbers Escaped
With $2500 From Hayes Hotel

Chicago, Jan. 18—(AP)—Five robbers today held up the Hayes Hotel office here and escaped with $2,500, which they obtained from a safe. The night clerk, three bell boys, a young woman switch board operator and two guests who were in the lobby were forced to lie face down on the floor.

A guest of the hotel came in while the holdup was being staged and asked for change to pay a taxi driver. When he went to pay his cab fare after the men had left, he found they had paid his bill for him.

William H. Schowe, cashier, was in an outer office when two of the robbers entered with shot guns. He fled to an office upstairs and sounded the alarm. Two squads of police arrived just a few minutes after the men had departed.

Their loot consisted of currency hastily scooped up.

Ganna Backs Up Hubby
in Radiogram Message

Chicago, Jan. 18—(AP)—The Chicago Herald and Examiner today received a radiogram from Ganna Wal-ska McCormick repeating the explanation of her husband, Harold F. McCormick as to why he did not accompany her to Europe.

"Private important reasons prevented Mr. McCormick sailing Saturday, but he is sailing next week," read the message from the liner Paris, from which Mr. McCormick had his luggage removed a few minutes before the steamer sailed from New York.

PRIEST DECLARES
PROHIBITION LAW
IS IMMORAL RULECalls it Greater Evil Than Old Saloons; Hits
Wheeler

Boston, Jan. 18—(AP)—The fact that the prohibition law is on the statute books does not make it sacred, the Rev. Charles J. McIntyre, said today in discussing an anti-prohibition sermon which he delivered yesterday at St. Mary's Catholic church here. He denied, however, that he advocated non-observance of the law as published reports of the sermon indicated.

"The remedy is repeal of the law," he said. "The people should get together and do away with it. I said that the law was immoral in itself and interferes with the liberty of the citizens, and attacked the position taken by those who hold that a law should be observed merely because it is a law and on the statute books. There are many silly laws which the authorities dare not enforce."

"I said that the president and members of the United States senate should not permit a certain well known lobbyist to enter the senate committee rooms as reported and attempt to influence legislation."

"I believe that the prohibition law is a greater evil in itself than was the old fashioned saloon. The prohibition law has bred a new group of drinkers. Young people are now imbibing, especially young girls. I tell you it is terrible."

"The Catholic church never has taught prohibition. It always advocated total abstinence, however, for the man who does not know how to drink properly. For such a man total abstinence is the right and proper thing. However, for the thousands who are able to take a drink, there is no earthly reason why prohibition should be forced on them."

Say Wrigley Will Head
Coal, Iron, Lumber Co.

New York, Jan. 18—(AP)—Reports have reached Wall Street of a contemplated consolidation of coal, iron and lumber properties involving $30,000,000 of which William Wrigley, Jr. has been mentioned as the probable head. The companies named as likely to be drawn into the merger are Chattanooga Gas & Coal Co., Tennessee Consolidated Coal Company, Southern Ferro & Alloys Co., J. H. Gray, Jr., Foundry Company and Bon Air Coal Company.

SON-IN-LAW'S PLAN

Chicago, Jan. 18—(AP)—J. F. Offield, son-in-law of William Wrigley, Jr., capitalist, has been actively interested in plans for a $30,000,000 merger of coal, iron and lumber interests. Mr. Wrigley, Jr. was said today at his office, is only nominally interested.

Mr. Offield, president of the Bon Aire Co., is with Mr. Wrigley at Avalon, Catalina Island, and associates said they were not aware how far negotiations have gone.

Copper Magnate Wants U.
S. to Lead in Aviation

New York, Jan. 18—(AP)—In an effort to make the United States lead in civilian aviation, Daniel Guggenheim, copper magnate, has established a fund of $2,500,000.

Mr. Guggenheim's son, Harry F. Guggenheim, was formerly a naval aviator. The creation of the fund is announced in a letter to Secretary Hoover, published today. It is Mr. Guggenheim's second large gift to aviation, the first having been $500,000 with which he established the school of aeronautics of New York University last year.

No Further Trouble Over
Tacna-Arica Award Feared

Arica, Chile, Jan. 18—(AP)—Having given careful study to the decision of President Coolidge rejecting the Chilean appeal in the Tacna-Arica controversy, there is a general feeling among the delegates that the ruling is not likely to develop new aspects of the plebiscitary problem, which is largely deprived of its political possibilities. Not only have activities bearing on the proposed plebiscite entered a new phase since the Chilean appeal was filed but the ruling appears to give each delegation grounds for thinking that it has been upheld on some point or other.

Reference to "Pretty Nose"
of Singer Cause of Action

New York, Jan. 18—(AP)—Summons in a $25,000 libel suit by John W. Steel, lyric tenor and former musical comedy star, against Variety, a theatrical publication, for printing alleged derogatory remarks about the singer's nose, was served today on Sime Silverman, president of the publication. The article published early this month, referred to Steel's "pretty nose" and stated that he had beautified on the insistence of his bride, Mabel Stapleton, who is now with him in Winnipeg as accompanist on a concert tour.

Mr. Steel's lawyer said that the operation was not to beautify it, but to remove a bone growth which interfered with his singing.

DIXON HIGH IS HANDSOME DEFEAT
BY MT. MORRISLocals Lost First Conference Game After Hard Battle

The Dixon high school basketball team lost their first conference game of the 1926 basketball season Saturday night to the Mt. Morris high school, 16 to 14. Superiority at shooting baskets from back of the center of the field disrupted Dixon's style of play and while Dixon men were covering the two stars for the visitors, the remainder of the Mt. Morris team shot baskets from all angles. Gus Bondi starred for Dixon and shot five difficult baskets. The second team won the Lee Center high school squad in the curtain raising event of the evening by a score of 30 to 10.

WON FROM ROCHELLE

After they had trailed the Rochelle high school basketball team 7 to 6 at half time the Mt. Morris speedy high school team came back in the second half and ran wild scoring baskets at will and holding the visitors to very few counters Friday evening. The final score was 46-19 in favor of Mt. Morris.

Alters, the giant Mt. Morris center and Johnson their flashy forward were the winners' stars scoring nine and ten baskets respectively. Heltness and Flannigan played well for the losers.

GROCERY STORE,
HOME WRECKED IN
BATTLE LAST EVE.John Kirtley Faces a Serious
Charge in Court
This Afternoon

A small grocery store and residence at 1208 Hemlock avenue was the scene of a general wrecking Sunday evening about 5:30 when John Kirtley, head of the household became incensed in an argument with his wife and practically wrecked the interior of the home, according to reports made by police officers who were summoned to the Kirtley residence. Mrs. Kirtley and other members of the family were beaten and bruised, it was said at the police station and a warrant for Kirtley, who appeared at the police headquarters battered and bleeding from injuries which she claimed to have received from her husband.

Kirtley had beaten a hasty retreat. "It was said, and could not be found when the officers arrived. However, about 6:30 he appeared at the county jail and surprised Chief Deputy William Rose when he volunteered the information that he had come "to give himself up." The deputy inquired into the seriousness of the crime and learned of the general breaking up of the Kirtley household and then turned Kirtley over to the police. He was taken before Justice Gannon in police court and his case continued until today being released on his own recognizance.

Stolen Elgin Car was Found East of this City

Local police this morning were called to investigate an abandoned car which had gone into a ditch along the Lincoln Highway east of this city. The car, a new special Buick brougham, was taken to the police station where it is being held. A set of license plates underneath one of the seats were issued to H. H. Juby, 156 DuPage street, Elgin, Ill., and a telephone conversation with that party revealed the fact that the machine was stolen in Elgin Friday.

The driver had taken off the Illinois license plates and duplicated a set of Iowa plates, it was said at the police station. Probably coming into Dixon about 2:30 this morning, the car skidded on the slippery paving and went into the ditch, where the driver was unable to extricate it and abandoned the machine after removing the license plates.

SOPHIE TUCKER
ENDS SECLUSION
OF IRVING AND ELLINGets Them to Attend a Farewell and Irv Sings
a Song

London, Jan. 18—(AP)—Sophie Tucker, the American vaudeville singer, has been able to bring Mr. and Mrs. Irving Berlin out of the seclusion of their hotel.

In the Kilt Cat Club she made Irving sing one of his songs before actors and society personages in the wee small hours of Sunday morning. Miss Tucker was staging a farewell function prior to her return to the United States. Berlin had refused resolutely to receive any messages that came to the hotel for him but Miss Tucker had managed to get one to him.

At the club the band was jangling its merriest and the couples on the floor were in the mazes of the dance. Few of those present recognized the demure couple who entered and sat together, watching and listening.

Then Miss Tucker exploded her surprise bomb. "I will know ask Irving Berlin to play some of his melodies for us," she said. Immediately all eyes were riveted on the bride and groom. Irving displayed his customary nervousness. Ellin blushed a deeper hue than her pink evening gown.

He Sang "Remember."

Shy and uneasy, Irving made his way to the piano. Instead of playing, however, he broke into "Remember" with all the pathos he knows how to put into his compositions. Sophie, who was seated next to him, wept. Mrs. Berlin literally drank in the words and the soft tones of her husband.

Later, Mr. Berlin explained why he and his bride had kept so closely to their apartment.

"We have only locked ourselves in the hotel because we are naturally shy," he said. "But I had to come and say goodbye to Sophie. She says I made her success but I guess it is true that she made mine."

He talked at length on the early struggles of Miss Tucker and himself when each earned only a few dollars weekly and of their subsequent successes.

Ford's Airplane Plant
Burned; to Be Rebuilt

Detroit, Jan. 18—(AP)—Plans for a new and larger airplane experimental laboratory were being worked out today by Henry Ford to replace one destroyed by fire Sunday. While the plans were not complete, it was understood that several times the loss, from $250,000 to $500,000 would be invested in the new structure.

Two Stout All-Metal Planes, one a three motored monoplane in its final experimental stage, were destroyed by the blaze. Between new motors and thousands of dollars in machinery and tools were irreparably damaged. All plans, specifications and paper work had been deposited in the Ford Engineering Library and were undamaged. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

State Senator Webster
Shows Belief in Small

Chicago, Jan. 18—(AP)—State Senator Daniel Webster of Chicago today announced his candidacy for re-nomination by the republicans so that the people may "disapprove of the decision of the courts and vindicate" Governor Small. He declared the suit of the state against the Governor for interest on money loaned while the Governor was state treasurer, was persecution and asserted his belief in the integrity of the governor.

AUTOISTS! YOU'D BETTER LOOK OUT
FOR STATE POLICEThey're Now at Work in This Vicinity Checking
Up Violations

State motorcycle officers in this vicinity have opened up a campaign against certain violations of the state motor laws and the drive will be centered in Dixon some time early this week, it is indicated. Tail lights are receiving a considerable amount of attention and officers checked up cars without these necessities in Ashton and Franklin Grove last week, issuing final warning to drivers of cars who had been negligent in caring for this important warning. The state motor law provides that at least one lighted lamp must be displayed at the rear of the motor vehicle, motor bicycle or trailer, showing a red light. This light must be so situated that it shines on the rear license plate so that the numbers are legible at least 50 feet.

Trucks operating in this locality are being checked upon by the state officers. The operation of trucks without a governor has caused some heavy fines to be imposed and almost every truck is being stopped and checked up by the officers. Proper headlights, boulevard stops, stopping on paved highways, tail lights, freak warning signals, mirrors on trucks, and the operation of cars with cut outs open are matters that the officers are directing their attention too at this time. Another matter that is receiving close attention is the operation of cars displaying red or green lights in the direction in which it is headed. The display of such lights is confined strictly to police and fire equipment or ambulances. Horse drawn vehicles of every kind are being watched. These are now required to carry a white light in the front and a red light in the rear and any who fails to do so is subject to a fine.

Nineteen Liquor Permits
Revoked by U. S. Director

Chicago, Jan. 18—(AP)—E. C. Yelowley, prohibition administrator today announced the revocation of 19 liquor permits held by physicians, druggists and commercial alcohol users throughout the district.

Dr. Carl Elton of Galva, Ill., and the following Milwaukee physicians had their permits rescinded: Doctors G. S. Nelson, Sidney Gold, Adolph Hussong and L. E. Scharf.

Russia's Coal Deposits
Largest in the World

Moscow, Jan. 18—(AP)—Should the world ever run short of coal, Russia will be little affected. Recent government figures put Russia's total coal deposits at nearly 350,000,000 tons, said to be the largest in the world. The Kuznetsky basin, situated on the northern slopes of the Altai Mountains, is estimated to contain not less than 250,000,000 tons. Next comes the Donetz basin which is estimated at 60,000,000 tons, about sixty percent of which is anthracite.

BIG LOCOMOTIVE
THREW TIRE ON
C. N. W. VIADUCTBad Accident Might Have Been Result
Sunday Morn

Engine No. 2816, pulling the second section of west-bound NorthWestern freight train 253, threw a tire from one of the big drive wheels just east of the depot in this city Sunday morning about 7:20, causing no small amount of trouble in the local yards and happily missing a serious wreck. The train was just pulling into Dixon and the big locomotive was on the over head crossing of the Illinois Central tracks when the tire left the wheel.

One of the side rods connecting the drive wheels was snapped by the heavy tire an dihe engine was stopped. Another engine was brought from Nelson to Dixon, taking the train on west and mechanics from the Nelson machine shops were also brought here and worked for several hours with an acetylene welding machine, resetting the tire. The noon passenger trains were brought in and out of the city on side tracks and after the repairs had been made the locomotive was taken to the Nelson shops.

BULLETIN

Bement, Ill., Jan. 18—(AP)—Carl Hanley, local garage owner, who Sunday night forced John Cutright's automobile away from him, with Cutright's wife in it, is still being sought by Platt county authorities.

Hanley, who is 24 years old, with Cutright and his wife, had been in Tipton in the afternoon. When they returned Sunday night, both men got out of the automobile to open the garage doors. Hanley drew a revolver, forced Cutright away from the automobile and Mrs. Cutright to stay in the automobile and drove away.

Early this morning no trace of the man and woman had been found.

Officers District
S. S. Assn. Meet to Plan Work for Year

Last Friday evening, at the home of L. E. Etnyre, the District S. S. Association Officers met for a council on 1926 aims, opportunities, etc. The Auditing Committee reported the books and accounts of Geo. E. Weyant, retiring sec.-treas., in good condition, and they were turned over to his successor, Miss Florence Stoner. Four schools out of eighteen have contributed for the Association work during the year ending May 1. $40.00 was ordered sent the county treasury from funds now on hand.

The annual report blanks for the schools go out this week, returnable to Miss Stoner by Feb. 15. A healthy increase is expected over 1924 figures. A district workers' banquet is to be held before Feb. 10, preparations for the same in the hands of the Association Vice President, H. V. Hunt, and Rev. and Mrs. Brandt.

Appreciating the splendid response a year ago for forward steps in school attendance at Easter time, the committee set the figure of 2,500 as the total aim for Easter Sunday, a ten per cent advance over 1925.

Miss Maxine Rosenthal entertained Friday evening at her home eleven young friends with a dancing party. A delightful time was reported by all attending.

Meeting South Dixon Com. Club

The all-day meeting of the South Dixon Community club was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Alfred Tourtellott on the Peoria Road. The morning was spent in sewing for some needy Dixon families. The picnic dinner at noon was much enjoyed and was served by the hostess, assisted by Mesdames Carson, Jensen, and Ort-giesen. The afternoon was spent in finishing the sewing and a short business meeting at which time it was voted that each member give a dollar at the next meeting to enrich the treasury of the club.

A short program included a reading by Mrs. Charles Breisch, a letter by Mrs. John Jensen, a trio by Mrs. Remmers, Mrs. Williams, and Mrs. Snader; a paper by Mrs. Ralph Lehman and a reading by Mrs. George Travis; a duet by Mesdames Ort-giesen and Snader, and Mrs. Tourtellott at the piano.

The next meeting of the club will be held week after next with Mrs. George Williams on the Dutch race.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—

Did you ever hear of families being made miserable by houses?

Of course, you have. You are, thinking right now of the Blanks and that $50,000 Dutch Colonial of theirs!

You were over there the other night and vowed you would never go again because of that terrible frown that puckered Mrs. Blank's alabaster brow when you rocked into the woodwork.

And you noticed the glance toward Mr. Blank when his old knees wobbled his demi-tasse cup, spilling it over one of Mrs. Blank's cluny napkins.

And you got to thinking of the days when Mr. Blank made his $3 a day as a bricklayer before he got rich inventing the new pressed brick.

But I am thinking of houses which crush lives in another way.

In Ruins.
Let me tell you about Marian. Marian found her safe and serene world fallen in ruins about her five years ago when her father suddenly died.

Marian hadn't reckoned with this Dad so much. She had been away at college for years. During school terms Dad was the fellow who sent the monthly check right on the dot and the fellow she bought a box of linen handkerchiefs for at Christmas.

He was the man, too, to whose funeral she was called home in her senior year.

Dad had bought a house while Marian was in school—to surprise her when she got home. It did—but differently than he had thought. Even while the contralto sang "Rock of Ages" over Dad's casket, Marian was conscious of what that house would mean.

"Mother's wanted a house all her life. I can't leave her now and it's cruel to even think of taking her from this home that she's waited for all these years."

"But if we could only go back to school together, we could take that little flat near the campus and Millie and Irene would rent rooms and that would keep her and I could finish school."

But tears, constantly damp from her tears, could not be burdened with the additional fright of leaving her new "house." And Marian hunted a job.

Opportunities for a wage-earning girl are necessarily limited if the girl must stick to one territory only.

For five years Marian has fought

Small Felt

The small felt hats which refuse to leave the fashion field are developing all sorts of whims. This one, from Reboux, Paris, shows what happens when felt decides to drape itself, instead of conforming to the strictly tailored lines that it used to follow. It is of a curious shade known this season as phantom red.

that grim fight which every business woman knows of trying to make economic security for herself and her mother, for their future years when her wage-earning powers will be diminished.

Out West.
Again and again there's been a school out West offering her a good teaching job, an advertising agency copy-writing job in the East—her friends "out there" call it over, but Marian must stay with her mother and the house, far away from all her former friends and interests.

"It's a nice house," says Marian, "but how I hate it. It's taken my freedom, every bit of it, away. Every time I come up the street and see it, I say to myself, 'Tied, tied, tied.'"

But Marian's mother thinks it "so sweet" that they have this "little home nest" together!

Women of a generation ago made much folderol over houses. They meant almost as much as family to them, because women had no interests outside their homes.

But today's girl, her mind busy with a hundred vital business or professional problems, makes any place home where she must hang her hat.

And there's the rub.

Thursday Reading Circle Meeting

The Thursday Reading Circle met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. L. W. Miller.

Mr. Miller, County Superintendent of Schools, gave a very fine talk on "A School System in Action." He brought out many interesting points in regard to the school, the pupil and the teacher. Mr. Miller also stated the need of a new High school in Dixon.

An hour of music followed. Those taking part were Mrs. Charles Bishop, Mrs. Lee Read, Mrs. Roy Scholl, Miss Mary Hintz and Miss Elwyna Miller.

At the close of the program the hostess served delicious refreshments.

DANCE WAS ATTENDED BY EIGHTY OR MORE GUESTS.

A dance held Friday evening at the Garfield Topper home was attended by eighty or more guests, and a most delightful evening was enjoyed by everyone in attendance. A midnight supper was enjoyed and then more dancing. This jolly company of friends enjoy many such happy gatherings.

Hintz-Morrill Marriage Saturday

On Saturday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock a marriage of interest to Dixon friends took place at the parsonage to the Methodist church. At this time Rev. A. W. Carlson, pastor of the church performed the marriage service which united the lives of Miss Mary Hintz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hintz and Nathan Morrill, son of Mrs. Lydia Morrill, both principals in the marriage being Dixon people. They were unattended, the wedding being a quiet and unostentatious affair. Afterwards Mr. and Mrs. Morrill left for Chicago where they are spending a short honeymoon. The bride was married in dark blue georgette crepe and wore a handsome corsage bouquet. Mr. and Mrs. Morrill will reside with the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Lydia Morrill, 815 Peoria avenue, on their return from Chicago.

Mrs. Morrill, a charming young woman, is a pianist of ability and has appeared many times before Dixon audiences. Mr. Morrill is a genial and likeable young man. They both have a host of friends in Dixon who wish them every happiness.

Rev. B. H. Cleaver Married Two Couples

Rev. B. H. Cleaver, pastor of the Christian church, officiated at two weddings Saturday at his residence, 703 Brinton avenue. The first marriage took place at 1 o'clock and united the lives of Robert Boyd, bookkeeper at the Dixon State Hospital, and Miss Inge Baggett, of New Columbia, Ill., an attendant at the hospital. This young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sharp, for whom the bride and bridegroom rendered a similar service last June. Mr. and Mrs. Boyd, who have many friends, left immediately after the ceremony for Dubuque, Ia., for a short sojourn with relatives and friends, after which they will return to their positions at the Dixon State Hospital. They are extended the best wishes of friends.

At 6 o'clock Saturday evening Dale Nelson Netts and Myrtle Bertha Weinbrenner, both of Grand Detour were united in marriage, at the parsonage of the Christian church, Rev. Cleaver officiating. They were unattended.

The bridegroom is employed at the Wire Screen factory. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weinbrenner and both young folks have many friends who wish them happiness. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served to a few invited guests at the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Herbert Shoemaker, 319 Grant avenue. The supper table was gay with cut flowers and ferns. Mr. and Mrs. Netts will reside in Grand Detour.

DINED AT HOTEL DIXON SUNDAY.

Among those who dined yesterday at the Hotel Dixon are included the following names—Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Newcomer, W. D. Newcomer, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Dimick, Miss Maggie Forrest, Mr. and Mrs. Isador Elchler and children, Mrs. C. J. Rosbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Raymond, H. C. Pitney, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Utley and children, Miss Imogene Loftus, Mr. and Mrs. H. U. Bardwell, Clara Gwen Bardwell, Mrs. Magdalen Masten, Mrs. Eustace Shaw.

SURPRISED MRS. RING WEDNESDAY.

Wednesday afternoon ten ladies surprised Mrs. Geo. Ring at her home, helping her celebrate her birthday anniversary. They walked in unannounced and genuinely surprised her. Bunco was played and fortunes were told, much merriment being derived from these amusements. A picnic luncheon was served and at a late hour all departed for their homes.

May Check Theory of Einstein by Eclipse

Batavia, Java, Jan. 18—(AP)—The photographs taken by the Swarthmore College expedition of the recent total eclipse of the sun with a view of obtaining further information regarding Einstein's theory of relativity are failures. Those taken of the corona are splendid.

Einstein photographs taken by the German and Dutch, and the other American expeditions were most successful. It has been decided therefore not to demolish the apparatus in connection with the Einstein investigations, but to retain it for further work in attempts to check Einstein's theory.

DIXON TELEGRAPH VACATION HOMESITES

THE TELEGRAPH has secured a beautiful tract of land in Sawyer County, Northwestern Wisconsin, on Grindstone Lake, a short distance from Hayward, surrounded by wonderful clear water lakes which abound in large "Muskies," pike, bass and other species of game fish. Property is located in the section where the deer and duck hunter can get game galore. This beautiful tract of land is being subdivided into ample sized lots for homes, cabins, or camp sites.

In order to obtain new readers and to give present subscribers a real place to spend an outing, we have made it possible to supply beautiful sites for the ridiculously small sum of $39.50. Price includes a year's paid in advance subscription to the Telegraph. Terms: $9.50 down, $25.00 per month. An individual deed goes with each lot. Nothing more to pay—no assessments or interest.

No more than five lots to any one individual. If you buy your limit, you can present each of four friends with a year's subscription to the Telegraph, besides your own subscription.

Grindstone Lake is four miles long and two miles wide. The shore line is reserved as a park for all lot owners. Every lot has lake and beach rights, whether on the water-front or not. You will have your choice in rotation as sales are made. ACT NOW! DON'T DELAY!

KING HENRY?

Poles want a king. At least some of them do. There is a strong monarchist party in that republic. And as usual among king-seekers, the royalists are not agreed on whom they want for king, or where they shall look for him.

In this dilemma some of the more adventurous Poles are suggesting Henry Ford. They arrive at him by a process of reasoning and elimination. Poland's affairs, they reason, are in a bad way. Poland needs a business man of the world. And Henry Ford, they assume, is the best American business man. So they are strong for making the flivver king a Polish king.

They are further moved to such a step by the fact that, choosing an outsider, they might avoid the bitter jealousies that have always wrecked Polish governments.

It doesn't seem likely that the modest Mr. Ford, after his ill-fated experience with his famous Peace Ship during the World war, wants anything more to do with getting the boys (or the Poles) out of the trenches. He would probably shy at royal honors and international politics worse than any old-fashioned farm horse ever shied at a snorting flivver. He would rather confine his connection with the Old World to making cars and tractors for it. But a world that craves entertainment, no matter at whose expense, would like to see the formal proffer made.

"GO WEST" NO FARTHER.

The "Buy Only California Products" slogan that has been sounded in the Golden State seems to have gotten under the skin of a mid-west man, who after making his money in this region, was induced to go to California, where he promptly lost what he had accumulated. He has written Secretary Gould of the Moline chamber of commerce, "saying things" about California and California boosters that wouldn't sound exactly courteous in print. But a lot of them are true. He asks:

"What does California want? They ask us to deliver to them residents with money gained from our soil, or human masses; to sell us their fruit and produce; to dip into our pockets through tourists, and then tell their people to buy only California-made goods. How much of the pie do they want?"

The writer advises our retired men of means to finish their like in happiness and comfort among their old and best friends, to live here where life is longer, more content, and to aid in the upbuilding and development, for its posterity, of the section that has rewarded them. This instead of being inveigled by the propaganda that California press and people are diligently spreading, magnifying the glories of California and traducing life in the great midwest, especially gloating over our occasional cold snaps and storms, that do so much to make of us a sturdy people inhabiting the section that has the richest soil in the world.

ARMY.

Ford now has nearly 10,000 "authorized sales and service dealers" in the United States. In addition, more than 28,000 service stations.

Common impression is that Ford's gigantic success is due mainly to his manufacturing genius. Quite as important and efficient is his sales organization. He leads all manufacturers in following his goods to market and seeing that they sell instead of accumulating in stock.

Manufacturers' goal used to be merely to sell to the dealer. Now they recognize the dealer only as a link in a chain, with the consuming public the real customer.

BREAKFAST.

Quit eating breakfast if you want to have fine health, says Dr. Viola M. Kimmel, food specialist. Theoretically she may be right, but practically she's wrong. Breakfast furnishes to the empty stomach the fuel we need for generating energy to carry on the day's work.

Lunch is the meal that should be light, or even abolished. Nature intended us to loaf or sleep at least 20 minutes after every meal. Immediate return to work after eating sends to other parts of the body the blood needed by the stomach in its first digestive assaults against food.

Scientists have changed the sex of salamanders. Maybe they did so by bobbing its hair and letting it smoke cigars.

Just because the paper says it is going to be warmer that's no sign it is going to be colder.

One poor way of committing suicide is by buying a used car and working yourself to death supporting it.

This Locarno peace pact hasn't stopped the fighting in Chicago.

While they are arguing rail mergers why not merge a couple of Pullman berths so a passenger can stretch his legs?

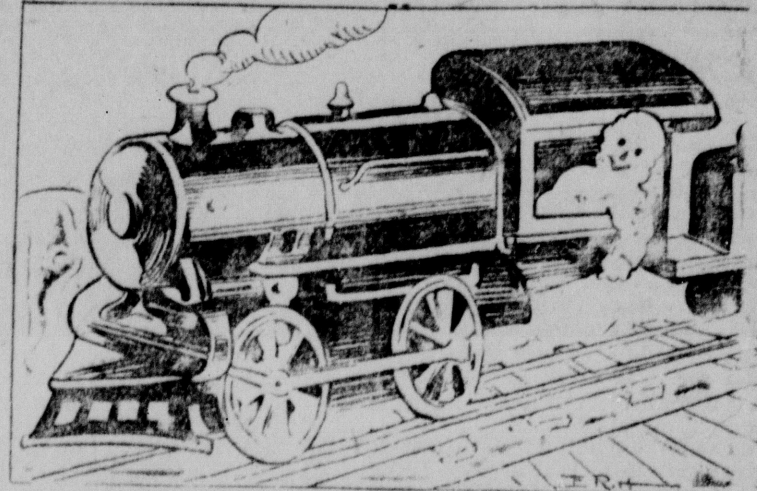

Some people are so darn dumb they have got to have a reason for being happy.

It's a real funny world. Small engagement rings seem to last much longer than larger ones.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWIN

NO. 7—MISS CALAMITY GETS MENDED

And who should be driving it but the Gingerbread Man.

It's hard to tell just what would have happened in Hidy Go Land if something hadn't occurred just when things were at their worst.

It was a train of tin cars pulled by a tin engine. And who should be driving it but the Gingerbread Man. "Flag that train," called the Crinoline Doll. "The Rag Doll stole my skirt off the wash-line and ran away with it. If we get one the train we can go after her."

Black Diah took off her red headkerchief and waved it as hard as she could.

The Gingerbread Man saw it with his one currant eye, and stopped the train.

No one seemed surprised to see the Gingerbread Man playing engineer. Indeed, as Mister Havalook said when it was all over, he thought that was the very best use a gingerbread man could be put to, except eating, because only half of him showed, and as everybody knows, gingerbread men have only one good side anyway.

"What's this trouble?" called the Gingerbread Man. "Is there a wreck on the road?"

"No," giggled Dinah, "jest a wash out on de line, Mistah."

"It's not all on the line," declared the Crinoline Doll crossly. "If it were we wouldn't be stopping you."

"What, what, what, what?" shouted the Gingerbread Man. "I can't hear you for the steam. Speak louder."

Right here, Mister Limber Long Legs began to show his usefulness by stepping up close and shouting, "We all want a ride. Will you take us along?"

"Sure," nodded the little brown engineer. "Step right on, ladies and gentlemen."

"Dear me, I can't go this way," said Calamity Jane. "I couldn't even get on, with only one leg."

"Get a crutch," advised Mrs. Jiggs. "What! With no arms to hold it?" cried Calamity Jane. "And no eyes to see where I am going, and no hair to—"

I don't know what she was going to say about her hair, for Nancy was bustling around the tinkering room where Mister Havalook kept his odds and ends, and right here she came bouncing up with several things.

"Here's a wig," she said. "I can't find the glue but it could be tied on. And here are two eyes. One is brown and one is blue, but they are better than nothing. And here are some arms and legs that might do in a pinch if you care to have them."

"Yes, yes, anything," said poor Miss Calamity, for everybody was yelling for her to hurry and the Gingerbread Man was blowing his whistle as hard as he could.

"Here's the glue pot!" said Mister Havalook, hurrying up. "The eyes go in first."

Miss Calamity got a lick and a promise, you might say, but even so she looked like a different person. Her legs and arms were all lengths, and she moved with a limp, but as Mrs. Jiggs remarked to Helinda, a half a loaf was better than no bread.

Miss Calamity was the first passenger on board. They put her on the coal car by mistake and as her glue was not dry enough to move her any further, there she stayed.

But she was happy, so what difference did it make.

"All aboard for Tin Can City," cried Mister Gingerbread.

"Hold on there," said Mister Limber Long Legs. "I'm not on yet. And I don't see a car long enough to hold me."

"I declare! Will troubles never cease?" cried poor Mister Havalook to the Twins.

THE FANGLE

LETTER FROM MELVILLE SARTORIS TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

Dear Madama of the Snows,

It has been so long since I have written you that I wonder, Madama Mia, if you have an idea that I have forgotten you. I have, please dismiss it immediately, because I think of you always, which means every waking hour. But I have not been in port for nearly a week.

We have been having abominable weather and ran into this out-of-the-world place this morning. Of course I had not expected to touch this port and consequently had no cablegrams or letters and had to rely on some old papers that had been left there by the last occasional ship, for any news of the world.

You can imagine my surprise and joy when I happened to read your name. You had sold your glorious pearls to Paula Perier and Karl Whitney and had placed the money in trust for your two boys. Don't think that I was happy at the thought that you had sold your pearls. Even though the correspondent seemed to think that you had some superstition about them and had attributed much of the unhappiness that had come to you to their possession and consequently you had determined not to keep them.

The paper said that Karl Whitney had given the pearls he had purchased to charity and of course Miss Perier can have no superstition when it comes to being the possessor of the finest pearls in all Alindora. Of course it would be foolish for anyone as superstitious as I to say to you he did not believe in your superstition. On reading that you had sold these lovely jewels, however, I felt I must write and tell you that again you came up in my memory just as you were when by eyes were first blessed with sight of you.

I remember that glorious white velvet gown that seemed not so much to clothe your body as it did to reveal each wonderful line and curve and most of all I remember the pearls in your hair, the collar that caressed your throat and the strings of lustrous whiteness that fell from your shoulders almost to your knees.

I remember your playing with these strands and I remarked to myself that the lustrous whiteness of the jewels on your fingers was not much whiter than your beautiful hands.

AMUSEMENTS

"BLOSSOM TIME" AT THE STUDE-BAKER SUNDAY, JANUARY 24

"Blossom Time" returns to Chicago commencing Sunday night, January 24, for an engagement limited to two weeks of performances at the Studen-baker Theater.

Since its initial appearances in Chicago the famous Franz Schubert opera has literally conquered the world. It is today a reigning triumph in England, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Russia, South Africa, Australia and is now being prepared for production in Tokyo, Japan.

The outstanding thing about "Blossom Time" is of course the use of Franz Schubert's own matchless music as the super structure, accompaniment and embellishment of the moving romance. Primarily a love story of serious values "Blossom Time" is relieved by much gaiety; by charming dances naturally introduced; by a host of pretty singing and dancing girls in the fascinating turnbells of 1825; and finally, by its charming old-world scenes. Laid in old Vienna these settings are thoughtful reproductions of actual scenes of a century ago, in that gayest of all European countries.

The work is sweet and wholesome throughout. Even children may see it without blush and children everywhere have formed, it is said, a considerable portion of its overwhelming patronage.

The present company furnishes the most cast ever assembled for "Blossom Time." It has been gathered together by J. J. Schubert personally from the first choice artists culled

Young vigor to old folks

"Six years ago had nerves, sleeplessness, constipation, and headaches had me run down. Tanlaac sent my weight up fifteen pounds and now, at sixty-seven, I feel as fine as at forty." W. H. Stearn, 1211 North Oakland Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

One of Tanlaac's greatest blessings is the new life and vigor it brings to old folks. Every day men and women up in the seventies and eighties thank us for Tanlaac's wonderful benefits.

Tanlaac is a natural tonic, made from roots, barks and rare herbs. Harmless to man or child. It cleans the blood, stirs up the liver and puts digestive organs in working order.

If your body is weak and run-down, if you lack ambition, can't eat or sleep, you'll be delighted with Tanlaac's results. Take Tanlaac Vegetable Pills for constipation.

from all of the four companies who have rendered the work on Broadway. Its roster of principals includes such splendid stage personalities as Knight MacGregor, Beulah Benson, Leeta Corder, Patrick Kelly, Robert Lee Allen, Jules Epally, Alexandra Dagmar, Milie Freeman, James Bardin, Norman Johnston, Harrison Wilson, Robert Tait, Oliver McCormick and the Misses Myra Lee, Sioux Nedra, Genevieve Naegele and Louise Rothacher, the principal dancer. A lovely ensemble of singing and dancing girls has been selected with as much care as is ordinarily given to the engagement of principals. Mail orders now receivable. Seat sale Thursday, January 21.

PHILLIES GIVEN BEST OF WINTER TRADE IN "DOPE"

Fletcher Got Two Fine Box Artists in Exchange for One

Philadelphia, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Partial solution of their infield problems and prospects of an improved pitching staff have brightened the outlook of the Philadelphia Nationals.

Manager Arthur Fletcher is considered to have delivered a master stroke in trading Jimmy Ring to the Giants for Wayland Dean and Jack Bentley. He has obtained two valuable moundmen in exchange for one and fans believe he has obtained in Bentley a player who will capably fill a vacancy at first base.

As a member of the Baltimore club, Bentley was used often at the initial sack. As both a major and minor league player he has been a powerful hitter.

Fletcher was not satisfied with his defense at first base last year. Chick Hawks who played there part of the season has been sold to the Newark Internationals. It will now be possible, however, for Fonseca, a second baseman to return to his regular position. Heinie Sand seems likely to be retained at short with either Huber or Wrightstone at third. Kimmick and Metz will also be available for infield duty.

A hard hitting outfield which includes the veteran home run hitter, Cy Williams, probably will be kept intact by Fletcher. Williams will play right field, Harper in center and Leach in left. Mekan will be in reserve.

Available for the box beside Bentley are Mitchell and Pearce, also left handers. Other pitchers will be Betts, Carlson, Ulrich, O'Neal and Willoughby, a recruit from Waterloo, Iowa, who won three straight games after joining the club in the fall.

Jimmy Wilson, Henline and Wendell will catch.

ABE MARTIN

RADIO FANS WILL TRY TO LISTEN IN ON EUROPE JAN. 24

Next Week to be Devoted to International Radio Tests

Next Sunday night will find the radio fans of the United States, Canada, Cuba and Mexico tinkering with their receiving sets in anticipation of the thrill of a lifetime—hearing Europe. The occasion will be the official opening of the fourth international radio week, which for listeners in the middle west will begin at 10 o'clock next Sunday evening.

During the test hour all the radio stations in the countries listed above will be putting on special programs in an effort to reach America.

Schedule Worked Out
Through the efforts of the international radio week committee a definite schedule for the whole week has been worked out, which not only will give American listeners an opportunity of logging European stations but also stations in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba and South America.

During the test hour, 10 to 11 o'clock, Dixon time, next Sunday evening only British stations will broadcast programs for the United States, while European stations will remain silent. Monday night will find the British stations silent and the stations in continental Europe—Germany, Spain, France, Italy, etc.—doing the broadcasting. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday during the test hour our stations will remain silent while both European and British stations are on the air, but on Friday and Saturday the program will be varied and the listeners can participate in the first American distance tests.

Fifteen Minute Periods
The program on Friday calls for the shutting down of all United States, Canadian, Mexican, and Cuban stations not in the eastern standard time zone. Stations in that zone will be on the air for 15 minutes, and it is expected that many a Pacific coast fan will hear the Atlantic coast for the first time during that period.

The second fifteen minute period of the Friday night hour will be devoted to stations in the central standard time zone, the third in the mountain time zone, and the fourth to the stations on the Pacific coast. Saturday night the process will again be varied.

During the first fifteen minutes of the test hour, only Canadian stations will be on the air. The second fifteen minute period will find stations in the northern half of the United States putting on their programs. The third fifteen minutes will be devoted to the stations in the southern half of the United States, while the international week will close with a fifteen minute program from Mexico and Cuba.

Special U. S. Programs
During the hour previous to the silent hour each night in America, United States, Canadian, Mexican and Cuban stations will put on special programs for European stations, but it is not expected that as many foreign fans will hear American as American fans hear Europe, on account of the difference in time. The test hour in Chicago begins at 10 o'clock at night. At that time it is 4 a. m. the next day in London and 5 a. m. in Berlin.

International Radio week, now in its fourth year, will this year find more persons than ever reporting European reception. After the tests last year more than 15,000 radio fans reported to the international committee that they had listened in to Europe stations during the week. This year with more and stronger stations broadcasting in Europe the American fan is better equipped to receive foreign signals as the sets are better and more people have them. Under ordinary atmospheric conditions and with the super-power to be used by several British and German stations, radio fans in the middle west operating good five and six tube sets should be able to pick up the foreign stations some time during the week.

Look Over Your Sets
Radio experts recommend that fans who are desirous of tuning in on Europe check over their aerial and ground connections and test their tubes and batteries in preparation. Foreign signals, because of the distances they must travel, will necessarily be weak, and any losses in the down tubes or weak batteries will make them that much harder to hear.

Always a Wise Now Investment Better than ever before

Dodge Brothers, Inc. have announced astonishingly low new prices.

They have announced important refinements in their product. Always building an exceptional car, they are now building better than ever.

Better in many ways—in beauty, comfort, driving vision, engine smoothness, snap, elasticity and getaway.

The simultaneous offering of lower prices and vital improvements is made possible by a gigantic expansion of buildings and equipment.

Ten million dollars so invested permit great savings through vastly increased volume and efficiency.

Part of these savings goes into further betterment of the car. The other part goes directly back to the buyer—in the form of a price reduction that staggered the industry.

Those who chose Dodge Brothers Motor Car in the past invested their money wisely.

Today they invest more wisely than ever before.

SYNOPSIS

Young Bob Mannering is in jail, charged with manslaughter, a car in which he was riding having crashed into another and killed a woman. His father, John Mannering, is District Attorney, and declares his duty is to prosecute the boy. Mannering is opposed for reelection by Jerome Wallace, Wallace is a former suitor of Eileen, now Mrs. John Mannering, and he tells her that if he is elected he will be in a position to help both her and Bob. The offer he makes seems to be her final hope.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

And yet such was Eileen's nature, that loyalty could not be forgotten nor those long years of mutual affection and common aims and aspirations discarded, however vital the object, without a struggle. Alone in her room, hours passed, leaving her in a turmoil of doubt. Without a storm arose as the darkness fell. In her mood Eileen found a sorry comfort standing by a window and gazing forth into the gloom while the wind howled about the eaves of the house and the rain spelled against the panes before her like the spendthrift of some mighty sea.

Suddenly a flash of lightning turned the universe a weird blue and the thunder reverberated overhead as if a monstrous truck was passing over the arched bridge of the firmament. Eileen leaped back, but only to step forward and, gluing her eyes to a pane, stare forth into the night at some object without which had claimed her attention.

Another lightning flash and what she saw was plain. There, huddled up on the top of the brick wall,

She returned this smile with interest—with usury.

Regardless of the descending rain, was a little figure.

Eileen threw open the window before her.

"Marjorie," she called, "is that you?"

The figure on the wall shifted its position, but made no response.

"Come out of the rain, child; come in here this minute," insisted Eileen, turning and hastening from the room.

Hardly a moment elapsed before she was back, bringing Marjorie Patterson, rain drenched and chilled.

"Come right over here by the fireplace, dear. I'll have these logs going in an instant. Now give me that wet coat so that I can get rid of it for you. Whatever possessed you to expose yourself in this way on such a night? Do you want to catch your death of cold?"

In spite of the flames which were leaping up from the logs, Marjorie shivered, and when she spoke it was with chattering teeth.

"Bob and I had a tryst there at the wall every night."

Very forlorn and pitiful did the girl look as she crouched there. If she were Diane, nurtress of men, her arrows were badly blunted at the moment. Eileen was filled with tenderness as she regarded her.

"You met there each night?"

Marjorie nodded vigorously and there was a sorry pride in her broken tones.

"Always, for months, he never forgot. All I had to do was to coo and Bob would come."

"Sweet, sweet, how sweet," sighed Eileen in the midst of her own woes, finding comfort in the other's affection for her son.

Again a shiver shook Marjorie, but, despite her chattering teeth, she gazed sentimentally into the flames and went on.

"Every night—at nine—we met. It was our hour—just like in a beautiful story I once read. There were lovers in it—lovely lovers."

"You darlings," whispered Eileen as if to herself. "They had troubles, too. But they were always faithful—faithful unto death," continued Marjorie dreamily, only to be shaken suddenly by a great sob. "Even if Bob can't keep tryst with me now I can come—I shall always come—until I die."

In a great wave of tenderness Eileen drew the girl towards her, but as her fingers touched the other's damp shoulders her mother's heart was awakened and she drew back.

"Why, darling, you are all wet, drenched to the skin, I'm afraid."

"I don't care." In Marjorie's eyes burned the fire which uplifts martyrs. "It doesn't make a bit of difference so long as I keep faith."

"I understand, dear. I realize how you feel, but you must give some thought to your health. It is not necessary that you risk your life like that."

Marjorie looked up and there was surprise and even wonder in her big eyes.

"But if you love a person, if you really love them, you don't care what sacrifice you make for them, do you?"

Eileen's eyes rested upon the girl, but in an instant there was a far-away look in them as if she had completely forgotten Marjorie's presence in the verity of her words. There was anguish, doubt and hesitation in her face and she closed her eyes as if under the stress of intense feeling. But when she opened them there was the certainty of one who has reached a decision and sees her way clear before her, in them, as well as resolution—the great resolution of a mother determined to go to any lengths for the sake of her child.

"You are right," she said, and there could be no doubt but that she was speaking to herself. "If you love a person, you do not care what sacrifices you make for his sake."

CHAPTER IX

There was a festive air about the Wallace apartment and many evidences that Jerome Wallace was entertaining. A simple affair; yes, an informal affair, quite informal. From the table spread before the fireplace Wallace and his guests had dined well, even sumptuously.

Now, in the easy comfort of his lounging robes, Wallace lay back in his chair and considered the world with that contentment which only a well lined stomach and a contented conscience can give. Yet the very interesting bit of the world upon which his smiling gaze rested was of a sort which sometimes plays havoc with conscience. It was a woman. A sleek-eyed woman, rounded of cheek, penciled of eye and with a luxuriant charm of figure, but thinly veiled by the gown she wore. A student of mankind, Wallace, evidently investigating every strata of society at first hand to fit himself for the office of District Attorney.

However that may be, he did not find his studies unduly onerous, for it was a pleased smile he gave her, with something even proprietary in it. A persuasive smile, too, for as if drawn by its power Greta hitched her chair closer to his and, thrusting her arm about his neck, returned this smile with interest. To be more exact, with usury, because it was a provocative, languishing look which she gave him and one with a boldness which took no more account of another guest's presence than if he had been a piece of furniture.

Alas, true genius is often slighted in a careless world. He so cavalierly disregarded was none other than that master mind of politics, slick Jennings. But, no matter, a good man cannot be downed, and this fellow Jennings was a man of parts. Behold him now in social guise, his hat tilted a bit more rakishly, his cigar slanted at a greater angle and a jovial smile playing over his ruddy, fat face. Ah, who could resist his winning ways as absorbed in his own affairs he was quite oblivious to the fact that he was regarded, much in the light of a footstool in a harem.

HUNTERS OF LEE COUNTY INVITED TO BIG WOLF HUNT

All Day's Sport Planned
by Carroll County
Sportsmen

Thomson, Ill., Jan. 16—Prevalence of wolves in York township, Carroll county, has led farmers and sportsmen in this locality to organize a huge wolf and fox hunt, to be held on Monday, January 26th. It is hoped to have at least four or five hunters take part in the roundup, in order that a large territory as possible may be covered. Hunters from all over northern Illinois and eastern Iowa are expected to participate.

Residents of Argo-Fay, a little hamlet in York township, have repeatedly told of hearing the howling of wolves at night, and rabbit hunters in the hills have even heard their howls in the daytime. Rush Carroll, a York farmer, tells of his dog being chased by three huge gray timber wolves, and the frightened canine did not return home until late at night, almost exhausted. Charles Leavens, who has several wolf traps set in the hills, reports one of his largest traps having been bent entirely out of shape by a wolf that had thus been able to free himself and escape.

Ed Meist, a Carroll county scout, has been selected as captain of the hunt, and he has announced that the hunters will convene at Argo-Fay between 10 and 11 o'clock Monday morning, January 26th. A lunch will be served at 11 o'clock by the women of the Argo church, and the drive will start at noon. Argo-Fay is an inland hamlet, 7 1/2 miles southwest of Mt. Carroll, 6 1/2 miles northwest of Thomson, 8 miles west of Chadwick and about 12 miles southeast of Savanna, and may be reached by car from any of these towns.

A similar hunt last year was attended by sportsmen from Chicago, Rockford, Freeport, Rock Island, Davenport, Dixon, Clinton and other cities, and it is expected that large numbers from these places will turn out again on January 26th. All red-blooded men are invited.

CARL C. MAGEE, EDITOR OF THE ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO STATE TRIBUNE, SAYS:

THAT selling ourselves, or our product, to our community is the chief business of everybody.

THAT the pat of baby fingers on a mother's breast is the instinctive effort of the child to bind its mother tighter to it—to sell itself to her.

THAT lovers try by every unconscious art of salesmanship to sell themselves to those they love.

THAT the doctor, lawyer or dentist finds selling his personality and his ability to the public to be his great problem.

THAT the teacher tries to sell his ideals of character and achievement to his pupils.

THAT the preacher tries to sell to the public the merits of the salvation he offers.

THAT salesmanship is life's great art.

THAT the underlying secret of it all is to have something to sell which is worth selling. If the public is cheated, life becomes a fraud; if value received is given, living is worth while.

THAT selling yourself the right ideals of life is your one big personal task. Otherwise you defraud yourself and finally find that life has cheated you of all permanent satisfactions.

SPINSTERHOOD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Breaking with her fiancé, BRUCE REYNOLDS, because he opposes her ambition for a career, BARBARA HAWLEY, a talented girl of 25, gets a job on the Chicago Telegraph.

JEROME BALL, a man about town, introduced to Barbara by BOB JEFFRIES, police reporter, takes her to a newspaper dinner at a roadhouse. While there she covers the story of the suicide of a prominent local man in a private dining room. She picks up a red scarf belonging to the dead man's unknown woman companion.

Bruce has joined the real estate firm of Manners, Stone and Reynolds, which later collapses due to the crookedness of Manners. Lydia Stacy, a rich widow, is attracted by Bruce, but when he treats her coldly she informs ANDREW McDERMOTT, managing editor of the Telegraph, of the impending crash.

Barbara is assigned to the story and Bruce blames her for the publicity given the firm's collapse.

Barbara carries on a correspondence in the local column of the paper with a factory girl named "Violetta." Then she reads of Bruce's marriage to VIOLETTA CRANBY, and realized she has helped another girl win her former fiancé.

When Barbara's mother dies, she moves into a small apartment with FANCY McDERMOTT, daughter of the managing editor. Fancy comes in after midnight to find Barbara waiting for her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXIV

FANCY came in slowly and closed the door. She did not see Barbara until Barbara moved. Then a shadow of surprise and consternation crossed her face.

She was walking across the room toward the bedroom when Barbara spoke. "Fancy," she said.

The girl stopped, but did not look around. "Fancy," Barbara repeated. "What is it?" said Fancy, sullenly.

"Where have you been?"

"Out with a friend," snapped Fancy, beginning her march toward the bedroom again.

"It's very late indeed," said Barbara gently.

"What if it is?" cried Fancy, whirling around to face her. "I'm old enough to take care of myself. You needn't worry, Barbara."

"Taking care of oneself isn't a matter of age, Fancy. I'm afraid your father wouldn't like this, dear. He expects me at least to know where you are and whom you are with."

"Don't you go and tattle, Barbara Hawley. You'll be sorry if you do! Oh, how my head aches. Let me tighter to it—to sell itself to her."

appeared when she left for the Telegraph office.

McDermott looked up as she hurried past his office door. She turned her head away, lest he ask her about Fancy. But he came to the door and called after her. "Good morning, Barbara? How are you and the youngster making it? I have a dinner date with her tonight. Want to come along?"

"No, thank you," Barbara replied, and turned her eyes away. The movement was not lost on McDermott. He turned back into his office with a sober face.

Barbara gazed after him and took one step toward his door. Then she

You don't want him to think you a gold-digger, do you?

"I am sure I cannot say whether all women can love a second time as well as the first. I can only say that there are many women who cannot. And there are many women who never really love at all."

At four-thirty Barbara approached the city desk. "I'd like to go home now, Mr. Wells. I have an important engagement and my work is finished."

Wells gave her a curt nod and went on scratching copy. Barbara reached home shortly after five. She washed her face

"And what, pray, is that? Merely that I've flirted a bit and drunk a little and generally enjoyed myself, in a comparatively respectable way. You can't hang a fellow on that, you know. Anyhow, the day is gone when fathers have such almighty power over their daughters. Bring on your McDermott. I'll meet him."

Barbara straightened her shoulders. "I'm not pretending to know anything heinous about you, Jerome. This isn't blackmail. But I do know you're heartless and fickle where women are concerned. And I know that a kid like Fancy has no chance of holding you for more than a few weeks."

"It looks to me as though she were rather seriously smitten with you. Oh, you have a manner, you know—and that's enough to get women."

"But you took that child last night to a roadhouse that is distinctly questionable. You drank whisky here with her before you left. Oh, yes you did—I found the glasses. And you brought her home after

"Don't try to bluff me, Jerome," said Barbara. "If you keep up your attentions to Fancy I shall tell her father."

turned with sudden determination and went to the telephone booth. When she came out her lips were tightly set.

"My heavens, Barbara," cried Bob. "You look like a lion hunting for a Christian. What's the matter?"

"Oh, nothing much," she evaded. "Just life, that's all."

Miss Badger made one of her rare pilgrimages to Barbara's desk. "Oh, Miss Hawley," she said, with the extreme nonchalance she always used in addressing Barbara, "I have been told that Jerome Ball's engagement to Angela Davidson has been broken off. A man who belongs to his club told me Jerome had slipped out of the back door again."

"Poor Angela! She's only one of many women who thought they had that gentleman clinched. But he always makes his get-away. Wonder who the new girl is." She looked at Barbara sharply.

"How should I know, Miss Badger? He doesn't confide his amours to me."

"Well, I knew you knew him and thought you might have heard about it. I didn't mean to offend you, I'm sure." The society editor's retreat was dignified.

Barbara plunged into the day's work, attempting not to think of Fancy or Jerome or of Violetta or Bruce. That afternoon her lover's column contained the last letter from Violetta, with Winnifred's advice to this effect:

"You should stand by your husband and try to help him weather his business troubles."

Then she sat down in the living room to wait.

At five-thirty the doorbell rang and she opened the door to Jerome Ball. He was looking particularly swaggering and good-humored. He laid aside his hat and came with a lordly gesture. "By Jove, Babe, this is great to be here. I never thought you'd call up your old pal and invite him 'round'."

Barbara detected a note of anxiety beneath the flippant words. "I wouldn't have, Jerome, without good cause."

"Cause?" Jerome lit a cigarette, and then with elaborate politeness, offered her one. She shook her head.

"Yes, cause. There's no use playing dead in this matter, Jerome. I know your game. In short, the sooner you stop running around with Fancy McDermott, the better for both of you."

Jerome raised his eyebrows. "Zat so?" he mocked. "And who was it said so?"

Barbara waved his insolence aside. "If you don't drop out of sight as far as Fancy is concerned, I shall tell her father all I know about you," she persisted.

Jerome seemed to be enjoying his cigarette. "Now daffodil, be reasonable."

The name maddened her. She turned on him. "Don't try to bluff me, Jerome," she warned. "Just as certainly as you keep up your attentions to Fancy, I shall tell her father everything I know about you."

one o'clock in a state of exhaustion and nerves that kept her in bed all morning."

Jerome looked at her, half-smiling. "Who do you think you are to interfere with my happiness or Fancy's either?"

"I'll admit I'm fond of her, and I think she's decidedly fond of me. Maybe you'll realize that I do care for her when I tell you that I've broken with Angela. Angela's a pale, spineless nancy-panmy beside Fancy. I tell you that kid's a knockout, all fire and go. And looks? Lord Almighty!"

Barbara was holding her temper with difficulty. "No, Jerome," she said, "it doesn't comfort me to know you've turned down the other girl for Fancy. That sort of thing is a mere episode in your long career. The ladies you've turned down for other ladies would stretch from here to Harlem. If placed side by side, Fancy'll have her turn and then go like the rest."

Jerome shifted in his chair. "Well, is there anything more to say? Guess I'll be rambling along."

"No," answered Barbara, "there's nothing more to say, but there are things to do."

Jerome laughed, his head thrown back. They heard the door open behind them. Fancy stepped into the room.

She gave them a startled look. Then she stepped nearer. "Now," she said to Barbara, "I'm beginning to understand why you hung such a fit last night."

BEST OF RADIO PROGRAMS

Pick of the Talent Announced by Radio Stations Throughout the United States

TO GIVE EUROPE DEMONSTRATION OF RADIO'S PROGRESS

Will Also Hear Great New York Orchestra on Sunday Evening

Europe will be given a demonstration not only of American radio development but also of American musical achievement during the A. T. water Kent Radio Hour, Sunday, January 24, at 8:15 p. m. Dixon time, when a concert by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch conducting, will be broadcast through a chain of 15 stations, including WOC.

The Kent program of this date will lead off the events of International Radio Test Week. Under arrangements made by the International Radio Week committee, stations abroad, in England, France, Germany and Italy, will remain silent during the hour this concert is on the air, in order that listeners in those countries may attempt to tune in, without interference, on the music from over seas. Similar "silent hours" will be observed both by American and European stations during the week from January 24 to February 1, to give radio fans on both sides of the Atlantic a chance to try out their sets for distance.

A real international flavor has been given the program prepared by Mr. Damrosch for this occasion. Mr. Damrosch, himself a European by birth, will say a few words preceding each number.

The program will be as follows:

- I. Overture, "Le Roi d'Ys".....Lalo
- II. Allegretto from Symphony No. 8.....Beethoven
- III. March Movement from Symphony No. 6 (Pathe).....Tschalkowsky
- IV. a. Chinese Dance from "Nutterack".....Lalo

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Back Check Passer is Taken Back to Freeport

Freeport, Ill., Jan. 16—(AP)—Phillip M. Kaler, alias Phillip M. Can-cortland, 23, indicted by a federal grand jury here on a charge of passing forged money orders stolen several months ago at the postoffice in Indianapolis, was brought to Freeport today from Laredo, Tex., where he was arrested.

His 17 year old bride also was held in connection with the case, but released on her own recognition. She said Kaler and his accomplices are reputed to have cashed forged money orders for sums ranging from $30 to $100 in Rockford, Ill., Beloit, Wis., and elsewhere.

An alleged accomplice known as Bert Mason, now under arrest in New York City, said that Kaler is one of four heirs who will soon share in a half million dollar estate at Portland, Maine.

Prisoner's Attempt for Freedom Stopped by Shot

Chicago, Jan. 16—(AP)—Scores of men and women in the lobby of the Hotel Sherman in the heart of the downtown district, were thrown into a furor today when an assistant bailiff shot and wounded Raymond Clifford, a prisoner, as he dashed amongst them trying to escape.

Clifford was being taken to court in the county building opposite the hotel, when he ran into the crowded lobby. The pursuing bailiff fired from a distance of 20 feet, wounding the prisoner, who was returned to jail.

House Approves Belgian Debt Settlement Compact

Washington, Jan. 16—(AP)—The Belgian war debt settlement was approved today by the house.

By a vote of 314 to 24 it passed and sent to the senate a resolution to authorize acceptance of the terms as recommended by the American debt commission.

After disposing of the Belgian settlement the house by a vote of 255 to 28, also approved the program for funding the $44,600,000 Rumanian debt.

Mrs. Medill McCormick Busy Visitor in Peoria

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Medill McCormick, widow of the late Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, and like her husband a sturdy foe of the World Court, was in Peoria today on a political visit. She was here in the interests of the Illinois Republican Women's Clubs for whom she is an organizer.

Expect Jardine to Give Coolidge's Farm Policy

Quincy, Ill., Jan. 16—(AP)—President Sam H. Thompson of the American Farm Bureau Federation back from farm conferences in Chicago and Washington, stated today that he expected definite expression of the administration's agricultural policy, particularly referring to the surplus problem, when Secretary Jardine speaks before the meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association at Champaign, Ill., Jan. 21.

There are 237,181 farms in Illinois, of which 73.2 per cent have telephone service and 62.7 per cent have automobiles.

There are more telephones in Illinois than in Asia, Africa, South America and Australia combined.

The first long-distance telephone conversation took place between Boston and Salem, Mass., on November 26, 1876.

Train orders are now being transmitted by telephone on more than 54 per cent of the railroad mileage of the country, says a report presented by the Communication Development Committee to the American Railway Association in annual session at New Orleans recently.

How Industry Can Reduce Accidents

"Auto death list nears 800—94 more than last year's toll"—is the headline of a Chicago daily.

City ordinances and traffic regulations have not succeeded in reducing the number of accidents. Why?

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) believes the right state of mind toward driving has not been created.

The driver of an automobile must consider human life more important than any business urgency. He must realize that a few minutes of time gained may mean death, and that a life can never be restored. A moment's carelessness and a little child is crushed beneath the wheels. A reckless risk and an old man is knocked down, never to walk again.

The driver of an automobile must feel the weight of his responsibility. He must be willing to take the time and the extra precautions needed to play safe at any cost.

This necessary state of mind cannot be compelled by law. It can be produced only by an appeal to the intelligence and human sympathy of man for man.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) believes that this state of mind can be created, to a large extent, among drivers of other vehicles.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has inaugurated a system of traffic and safety rules, which all drivers of Company owned trucks or cars are required to observe. These regulations apply to every employee of the Company and every driver is asked to pledge himself to observe them.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) considers its traffic rules of primary importance. It realizes that success depends upon the spirit of service and co-operation in the employees themselves. It knows that a state of mind cannot be compelled by law. It appeals to the loyalty and sound judgment of its men. They obey its traffic rules because they want to, because they know that they are right.

This Company has proved by its own experience that the state of mind which avoids accidents can be created and cultivated among drivers of its trucks and cars.

Its attitude, reflected in its rules, has taken the first long step in the direction of creating this state of mind. This "service of safety" is but one of the many services this Company offers to the public, which makes its success in industry possible.
